Course Description as it currently appears in the system course database:

Course Description:
Introduction to the College of Education and Human Sciences: orientation to careers and college and university resources.

Course Rationale:
This course is designed to empower students as they transition to SDSU, further explore major and minor programs of study available to students and create a link to the mission of the College of Education and Human Sciences. Emphasis will be placed on succeeding at the university, exploring issues related to individuals, families, schools, and communities and how professionals work within interdisciplinary teams to solve problems and enhance human potential.

Section 2. Modification(s) Requested

1. This modification will include (check all that apply):

   - [x] A change in course description/subject matter content (including pre- and/or co-requisites and/or registration restrictions)

     Revised Course Description:
     Course Description:

Term change will be effective: Fall 2012

2. Provide a justification for all of the changes noted.
The proposed change will provide a course for students in the College of Education and Human Sciences to learn not only about the majors and minors available, but will also explore a variety of human potential topics related to the four departmental areas of study. In addition, university resources available to students will be discussed and promoted.

The addition of the lab will allow instruction to happen as a split course, with a large lecture to all students one day per week and breakout sessions focused on supporting activities one day per week. We propose that the lecture be 2 credits and lab be 0 credits.
