Title IX & Equal Opportunity
Confidentiality Disclosure

We encourage all campus community members and visitors to bring forth concerns.

Please note that SDSU has a legal and civil obligation to take action to address and remedy issues that are reported. The Title IX/EEO Coordinator and Deputy Coordinators will take all reasonable measures to protect your identity when addressing issues, however, there may be situations in which this is not possible.

All matters are reviewed in a highly sensitive manner.

If you wish to report concerns in a confidential setting, you are encouraged to speak to the counseling staff at the SDSU Wellness Center.

What is Title IX & Equal Opportunity?

Title IX forbids sex discrimination in all university student services and academic programs. Title IX also forbids discrimination because of sex in employment and recruitment. It addresses sexual harassment, gender-based discrimination, and sexual violence.

Sexual violence includes attempted or completed rape or sexual assault, as well as stalking, verbal or physical threats or abuse, and domestic violence.

The notion of Equal Opportunity (EEO) calls for equal treatment for all; the availability of the same rights, position, and status to all people.
